because there is nothing that needs to be done in secret, except, perhaps, detailed statements of our Defences. Holding the views that we do on this question of publicity, it is satisfactory to be able to note the amount of printed correspondence laid on the table of the Council yesterday.

The correspondence relating to the Conference to be held in London, upon questions of common interest to the various parts of the Empire, we have already described as fairly satisfactory. No better representative could have been selected than Mr William Keswick for such a duty as that of indicating the wants of the Colony. Mr Thomas Jackson is another resident whose acquaintance with the needs of Hongkong can scarcely be excelled. But the question still remains, whether the views and feelings of the residents here should not be formulated and sent to these delegates, so that the latest and freshest views on our present position may be fully in possession of our representatives before the Conference meets. This, we take it, was the main object of the questions put by Mr Chater .. ' Here,' he says, 'is our opportunity of bringing our claims before the Conference and apminting our delegates without delay, and of instructing them to push our schemes. forward in such a manner as to get. what we want.' Mr Chater added that ! we want the Colony to be put in a thorough state of defence'; and he might have appended to that desire that the Colony has been already called upon to pay a considerable share of the cost necessury for the attainment of that muchdesired object. It will be admitted that the statement of the Acting Governor conceruing the Standing Defence Committee was satisfactory, in so far that it indicated a step in the right direction; but it will be much more reassuring the German language, by Rev. F. Hartmann, news to hear that all the means of defence promised by the Imperial Government are in the hands of the Committee now named. It may be a question, The O. S. S. Co.'s steamship Menelaus, naval officer are on board the missing however, whether this Standing Defence Committee is the most faithful interpretation of the Secretary of State's meaning of a 'Local Defence Committee.' The officers composing the Committee just formed are of necessity, and by virtue of their official position, already bound together for the defence of the Colony in case of attack; but, excepting the Commodore and the Captain Superintendent of Police, the members would be under the direct orders of the General. What was originally supposed to be meant by a Local Defence Committee was a body of men who possessed great experience of the Colony, -say the Harbour Master, the Captain Superintendent of Police, the Commandant of the Volunteers, and two members of the mercantile community. That would be a body which, in an emergency, might whose special duty it was to provide for the defence of the Island; and we rather think that the real idea of the Local Committee, as one intended to supple-Imperial Officers, has been missed. We doubt not that the unofficial members are duly forwarded to their delegates at the forthcoming Conference, so that

We note the publication of the despatch respecting the extension of leave granted to Governor Bowen. > THE great 'Joss' at the Man Mo Temple was consulted to-day as to the veracity of the statements of two Chinese witnesses. We do not know what standard of truth the Mysterious One behind the shrine has set up, but his decision to-day was rather equivocal, and Mr Mitchell-Innes had the audacity to hold it as worthless and tomulet the appellant to the gods in a fine of $200. The affair came about in this wiso. Inspector Bromner burst up a gambling house in Caine Road yesterday and arrested four men, among them the keeper of the establishment. As usual in such cases the evidence of an informer was of considerable importance. This evidence the kacper of the gambling house challenged and wished that the test of chopping off the heads of two cocks should be tried in the august presence of the great ! Joss in the Man Mo Temple, so as to decide whether he or the informer were telling the truth. The Magistrate doubtless desiring to give the prisoner every chance of vindicating his innocence raised no objections to the trial. Inspector Bremner was instructed to take the accused and the accusor to the shrine whose lives were to be sacrificed for the sake of truth and justice. So the Inspector got a small party of lukongs and marched with the two oracle-consulters to the Man Motemple. There preparations are evidently being made for the New Year celebration and a little more than the usual bustle was observable. A number of m ea offerings were to be seen spread out before the Joss' and round his sanctity burned innumerable joss-sticks. The gong was sounding, the worshippers were elbowing each other in the narrow passages, laughing, chatting, buying, selling, everything in that nice pell mell condition so peculiarly Chinese.

After forging a way with some difficulty to the inner sanctuary the cocks were brought was valueless. The Joss doubtless had been too busy thinking of the preparations for the New Year to heed the prayer of the unfortunate gambler. So there was no other hope but accept in lieu of his decision the decision of the Magistrate, who, as stated before, requested the head gambler to hand over $200 or to go to prison for aix months, while he fined two of his retainers $25 each and one $1. We do not know on what grounds the Matest, but we scarcely think the resorting to such an absurd practice could under any .

Socially the place is becoming even as Shanghai, for the Chinese Times records smoking concerts, kettledrumsbachelors' dances we presume -- paper hunts, balls, fortnightly sports, to consist of a hunt and a flat race, past and to come. And Taku, following Tientsin, is about to photo., but a pair of their old shoes. start a vortex of its own-' hebdomadal entertainments,' the Society man of the Times calls them, which we guess means a weekly dance, at the new Hotel; and there are to be balls there during the Taku season. is rumoured that the German Minister at Peking is about to give a ball, at which the ladies are to appear in Ohinese costume. It would seem that with all this gaiety, the Tientsin people find it difficult to find time for everything that is to be done, more days are wanted in the week, to accommodate the ladies who have not got afternoons enough for their receptions. This points to an immense change in Tientsin, where formerly nobody wanted to spend more time than was necessary to get Li Hung-chang to sign a Concession. - N.-C. D. Neres.

THE N.-C. D. News of the 1st instant records the suicide of another European in the Far East :- The Wachang, from Chefoo, arrived here yesterday bringing news of the shocking death of Mr James Campbell, the third engineer of the steamer. The deceased had been unwell for some days and took no food. Dr Henderson was sont for, and he saw that there was a revolver in the hand of the deceased, and a wound in his forehead. No cause is assigned for his shooting himself, and the jury which was empanneled found a verdict to the effect that the deceased had committed suicide while in a state of temporary insanity. The deceased was a very quiet man, years of ago, and came out to China in the Ngankin.

Fostunately there was no wind alarming proportions, as the premises consumed were situated in one of the most crowded portions of the town. As it was the godown belouging to the Yokohama Sail and Rigging Company took fire, and the contents suffered damage estimated at over $1.000. The steam and hand engines bealso the Japanese engines, were quickly on the spot and rendered efficient assistance. Detachments from the U. S. S. Qmaha and Marion, under command of Lieutemant T. B. Mason, also did good service in preventing the fire from spreading to the adjaining premises. We regret to hear that one of the Japanese firemen was seriously injured by falling stones and is not expected to recover. The building and conten's destroyed are said to be insured. The furniture, we hear, is insured in the South British Fire and Marine Insurance Co: of New Zealand and the building for $5,000 in the City of London Fire Insurance Co.

THE South Australian Chronicle of 20th November atates :- Mr B. C. DeLissa was a passenger by the P. & O. mail steamer Shannon, which arrived at Glenelg on Friday morning. It will be remembered that this gentleman was the promoter of the DeLissa Sugar Company in the Northern Territory. He has since changed the scene of his operations to North Borneo, where he is now engaged in developing some of the resources of that colony. Mr DeLissa has just been to England to arrange for the establishment of a line of steamers between Hongkong and Australia, calling at Sandakan Bay, North Bornso, en route. The Government of that new British dependency have agreed to subsidise the line, and it is believed by Mr DeLissa that Messrs Gibb, Livingston's & Co. steamers will be employed to carry out the contract. He also told our reporter that the analysis of the North Borneo guano has been so setisfactory that the proprietors of the concession, Messrs Dobson & DeLissa, have determined upon laying a line of railway of about 10 miles in length, in order to convey the guano to the nearest seaport. With reference to the Adelaide Jubilee Exhibition, Mr DeLissa was of opinion that North Borneo could not be represented, the Government having decided not to grant a subsidy, but he hopes to return there in time to forward an exhibit of his own.

One of the residents, of Shanghai, Mr Samuel

Morris, (according to the N.-C. D. News) had an unusual experience with his house boy on New Year's Eve. He had found fault with the negligence of his office coolie the day before, when the houseboy being rather insolent in his manner and language. Mr Morris told him he must leave. After few friends who had taken breakfast with Mr Morris had left, he told the boy to bring his accounts for settlement and he came in about half an hour, having evidently waited till they had the house to themselves. And it is evident from his conduct afterwards, that the savage attack he made on Mr Morris was not a sudden impulse. His master, sitting at his office desk, objected to one or two small items-for mops-telling the boy he should have gone to an English store for them, as he had often been told to do. . The boy used a filthy ex. pression, which is rather common among the lower class of Chinese, and told his master to go for the mops himself. Mr Morris, naturally angry at this, reached over for the ruler, when the boy struck him in the eye, threw himself on the top of Mr Morris, pinning down one arm of the latter so that it could not be used and endeavouring to inflict serious injury with his knee, and, having his master by the throat, nearly strangled him before he could free himself. Mr Morris, who knows how to use his fists, attempted to punish the boy; but found the Ohinese-who is a powerful Cantonese much heavier than his master-knew how to uso his also. When closed with, the man endeayoured to break Mr Morris's back by pressing him against the table, and during this part of the proceedings the latter received considerable injuries about the body and was bitten on the hands. After some minutes Mr Morris succeeded in giving the boy the 'Cornish buttock fall' and threw him heavily, when the fellow was done with. FRAGRANT WATERS' MURMUR That it is asserted that the Secretary of the Sanitary Board made a mistake in his deduction, from the large mortality of infants in the Convents, that "it is quite evident that the nursing of the Sisters is an utter failure as far as saving the lives of the infants committed to their care is concerned.1

That its may be that he has ascribed the · failure of the nursing to the fact that most of the infants were past nursing, for all we know, as Mr McCallum's report has, as yet, only been quoted from, though it has been described generally as an able report by those who have seen

That he may have pointed out the fact that the largest proportion of the children referred to were in a moribund state when admitted, and that there must be some object in thus turning the Convents into depositories for the dying.

That this object is, as I have already suggested, the desire to baptise the children into the Roman Catholic faith so long as breath remains in the little bodies.

That painful as the statistics of this infantile mortality may read, they probably mean a decent burial secured after some efforts have been made to maintain life, instead of the children being left to die on the hillside by their inhuman parents.

That the public would like to know how many hands and how many pens have been engaged upon the various versions of Father Burghignoli's raply to Mr Mc-Callum's unpublished Report, and who is the moving spirit in this dangerous description of dodging. That the unofficial members should insist upon the whole of the documents being produced, and then vote a sum for the better sanitation of the Convents with their eyes open. That Mr Chater's maiden speech in the Council Chamber yesterday reads well, and that he was speaking on a subject in which he is largely interested.

That few individuals have more property in this Colony, registered in their names, than our latest addition to the Legislative Council, and that on this subject of security of property we may therefore always expect him to be elequent and to the point.

That Mr Marsh evidently made a slip in his despatch to the Secretary of State when he referred to Mr William Keswick Jardine, Matheson & Co.

That it is generally understood here that have been correctly described as late senior resident partner.

other day was a very enjoyable gathering, and that the arrangements for the comfort of the guests were perfect.

That general regret is expressed at the approsching departure of the Commodore, and many hope some duy to welcome him here as Admiral.

That it is not reassuring to experience a return to the foot-pad robberies of many years ago, and that there can be only one mode of checking such desperadoes when

That !'Tis but a little faded flower' does not now apply to the Al Fresco Fete, as the little bill for damages is being made up.

That the next Fete or Fancy Fair, as I hinted before, is to be held in aid of the new Organ Fund, and is to combine variety and startling novelties.

That it is to take place on the evenings of Friday (11th) and Saturday (12th Feb.), from 8 to 12 o'clock; and that all the stall-holders and others assisting are to appear in fancy dress.

That a Gipsy Camp, an Art Gallery, and a Wheel of Fortune are to form attractions of the Great Fair, and another bran new Burlesque is being written for the occasion by 'our local Burnand.'

That the feature of the gathering is to be the Panorama of 'The War in the Soudan, which will be on a scale of magnificence never before seen in the Far niversary of the Granting of the Royal East, and seldom dreamt of-the moving | Charter to the Company, this day was held of the British fleet, the march of the troops, and so forth, being truthfully boats, together with aquatic and a small fortune-a smart decline of 7 per cent. in a day (from 162 to 155), considerable sales at that price for cash, and then an immediate recovery to 158 and 160.

buyers, as to but few operators is given the wherewithal to buy some hundreds of Bank shares for cash.

That it, is somewhat singular, to say the least of it, that the loudest preactiors in regard to a fall, consequent on the uncertainty as to the £2 dividend without the assistance of the Equalisation Fund, are the first to profit by the result of their preaching.

That the immediate future depends upon the dividend question, but appearances now point to a slight advance, whether to fall again is an open question.

That Sugars jumped 2 or 3 per cent. in one day, to similarly decline a day or two after, but that the tendency continnes towards the 130, at least for March, with the off chance of 10 or 15 per cent. dividend rumour has it that the Company has already carned, a goodly sum is carried over to next year, and the encouraging reports of the future turn out to be well founded.

That the 'Sugar dinner' bad a 'done well' ring about it, according to your report of it, and it would appear to have been a most successful gathering, with some good after-dinner speeches.

That a fair dividend on the stock will cortainly be welcomed by those shareholders who have held on to their shares during the past two years of depressions for but incurred for interest.

That Docks are also higher and firm, and an early rise of several per cent. seems Employes on New Year's Eve seemed to have the look of an 8 or 9% dividend about them.

That Punjoms are again strong at th quotation of $14, and the advance to $20, or over, for March seems but a question of advices from the Straits.

Mr Bowles, I noticed, was of the same opinion, and it was a great satisfaction to me to have my judgment confirmed by so experienced a parent, Mrs Bowles, had she been alive, would, no doubt, have agreed with us. I had known Mary Jane since she were short frocks. Johnson had known her about a month. It was pleasant to hear her call me Sam and him Mr. Johnson but somehow the familiarity in my case seemed to have bred, not contempt -oh, dear, no! nothing of that kind-but, a sort of nonchalance of manner, (How useful the French language is when one wants to express a very deliente shade of meaning)

But that was her artlessness. Dear me, Sum,' she observed at the tea table, "what have you got such a long face for !' Johnson's attentions had made me a little pensive.

Something must be long to make up for the prevailing shortness,' I said. Jehoson was not much taller than Mary Jane. I made a note of that sarcasm afterwards. My impromptus are too often lost. Mr Bowles had to be aroused from the doze into which he usually dropped after tea. It was in that habit that my penetration had detected his conviction that Mary Jane was an artless creature.

I was listening to the duct overhead, and had a very indistinct idea of what the old gentleman said, and of what I was saying myself. I cannot sing, but it was not for that reason that I objected to the preposterously operatic way in which Johnson was conducting himself.

'My dear boy, you are not well,' interrupted Mr Bowles kindly. "Have a glass

When I left the house that evening I was thoughtful. It struck me that Johnson had Mary Jane in his mind's eye. I could not damage that organ of vision, so I decided that nothing would be gained by hitting him. But something would have to bedone. I wanted to marry Mary Jane. She was a charming girl, and her father had a little money.

My suspicions about Johnson were confirmed next day. I met a lively friend, who said :— 'Oh, you know Johnson?'

'Ho's going in for the little Bowles. Told me he should propose to-morrow night when he takes her home from Twig's party.'

fine night apparently, but I took my umbrella. It was a new one, surmounted By an alligator's head in German silver. Fervently I invoked Juniter Plavius to befriend hie, and hope Johnson would leave his umbrella at home.

It was less than 10 minutes' walk, but there was time enough to show a little preliminary tenderness, if not to put the grand question itself. With an artless girl like Mary Jano, it was best to approach such a subject by degrees.

Oh, thank you, Mr Johnson. Good night, Sam; Mr Johnson will see me home. It isn't raining much, and you won't get wet if you run all the way.

I do not know whether I got wet or not. For that matter I don't know how I got homo. I believe the Twigs thought I had been drinking too much. Perhaps I had, or how could I have thrown the wrong umbrolla out of the window? It was found some weeks later, and whon it was brought to me in a pulpy condition by young Twig, who is the smallest of wags, he suggested that I should adopt a waterbutt and umbrella as a crost. Johnson did propose to 'the little Bowles' during their walk home. They are married now. That umbrella business remains a mystery, but am still convinced of the artlessness of Mary Jano. -S. F. WE SHOULD BLOT OUT DISEASE

IN ITS EARLY STAGES. The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, ombracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and in fact the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drugs out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himsolf the following questions he will be abl to determine whother he himself is one the afflicted :- Have I distress, pain, diffliculty in breathing after eating there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness ! Have the eyes a rellow tinge Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompartied by a disagreeable taste ! Is the tought coated? Is there pain in the sides and back Is there a fullness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal posi-Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after outing, accompanied by flatulence or belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will formation. be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a the grassy turf beside that marmuring time by expectoration. In very advanced appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold sticky perspiration. At the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against the latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is 'Seigel's Curative Syrup,' a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine condors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Seigel's Curative Syrup.
